

Agapanthus—some great new varieties

Every year at in November and December it is amazing how good the old fashioned agapanthus look all across this country of ours. I like the original species but I have to say that the plant breeders have done a really good job with a number of new varieties that I think are really worth having.

5 of the best new ones

Agapanthus 'Amethyst' —slightly smaller growing but really prolific flowering. This one has been in for about 2 years and has flowered about 6 times already.

Agapanthus 'Silver baby' – dwarf growing form with white flowers tinged in purple

Agapanthus 'Queen Mum' – huge flowers of white with purple
stripes

Agapanthus 'Purple Cloud' – huge deep purple flowers

Agapanthus 'Summer Gold' – grown more for its deep variegated foliage. Does get light blue coloured flowers and prefers a little bit of shade.
